Jack Berry House Planning Application Submitted

The Injured Jockeys Fund is delighted to confirm that the planning application for the construction of Jack Berry House was submitted in full to Ryedale District Council on Friday 7 December.

“These applications always take time to pull together but we are really thrilled that the scheme has now been submitted” said Lisa Hancock, Chief Executive of the Injured Jockeys Fund.

“With the help of our architect Nick Silcock of Townscape Architects the design is low level very sympathetic with its surroundings and will sit well on the site. The two acre site which will be purchased from Lady Juliet Tadgell and the Fitzwilliam Trust Corporation borders the Malton Rugby Club with the Cricket and Football Grounds lying adjacent.”

John Fairley, Injured Jockeys Fund Trustee and resident of Malton said “Our aim is to provide a centre of excellence for fitness and rehabilitation in the north of England. The building will be open to jockeys (past and present), the local equestrian based workforce, other sportsmen and women, and those from the local community.”

It is hoped that approval will be granted in February 2013 and construction on the site could begin as early as May 2013.

Lisa Hancock added “We anticipate that the total build costs will be circa £3.5m, we know that we have great support from the northern based racing community and our Vice President, Jack Berry, will be taking an active role in our fundraising.”
